Johnson is a dual threat quarterback that is tough to bring down. This three year starter finished his career at FAU with 5,863 yards in the air and 1,575 yards on the ground. Johnson has played in 32 games as an Owl and finished with a total of 57 touchdowns. This former transfer was effective right away and named Conference USA and FAU "Newcomer of the Year" after his first season. Johnson ranked 10th in Conference USA for rushing that year. Johnson uses his speed and strength to make plays with his feet if receiver's are covered down field. Being a top NFL draft prospect for 2016, Johnson can prove his powerful quarterback style will be effective in any offense.
